

to: FCC
re: RM-10620

for the record , my objection to this proposal is pure ego.

when i got my ticket, i held a commercial radiotelephone license, specifically, a 'second phone'. getting my advanced said something about my technical expertise, and not having an extra meant something as well. i lacked the code.

as it now stands, i have seen "NOTHING" to indicate that an 'extra' class license is s 'step' up. there is an intrinsic , and i think disheartening, ambiguity at having it. specifically, does it mean mastery of the code/theory, or test taking accumen.

i am more than happy to admit only having an "ADVANCED" , and would really like being able to continue doing so.

terry l. white
73's WDOFPC ...